DANCING CARNIVAL GETS EVERARD'S BATHS.

The numerous patrons of the Dancing Carnival at the Grand Central Palace were greatly interested in the announcement that the management of the carnival had secured control of Everard's Baths at No. 28 West 46th Street and would open them to-day.

In speaking of this new venture, George Grundy, manager of the Dancing Carnival, stated they had decided to run the baths along the most scientific lines, with all the attendants experts. It is a well known fact that a Turkish bath offers the quickest and easiest method of getting rid of a cold case of catarrh. The Everard Baths will now be run on the same principle that has made the Dancing Carnival a success; that is, it will be a place where patrons can take their baths. One of the unique features at Everard's under the new management is the arrangement of the hours from 12 to 2 daily for business men who will be given the privilege of a Turkish bath, cold plunge and rub down, followed by an excellent luncheon, for $1.25.

KNICKERBOCKER, STRAND AND PLAZA PICTURES.

The programme for next week at the Knickerbocker Theatre will include Hale Hamilton in "Her Painted Hero," Tully Marshall and Thomas "The Disciple," "The Sable Torch," Charles Murray in "A Game Old Knight," and William S. Hart in "The Disciple." The Sable Torch" is the story of a band of desperadoes and smugglers of coolies. Intimate pictures of the workings of the "gangs" of Chinatown are shown. David W. Griffith supervised the play.

At the Strand Theatre the main feature will be a screen version of James' "With a Girl." The cast includes Che Riddily, Marjory Daw, Wallace Reid and Richard Grey. There will also be a topical review, war pictures and a musical programme.

A change of policy is to be inaugurated at the Plaza Theatre on Monday. Besides the feature picture, Katherine Osterman in "The Bludger," there will be five vaudeville acts.

"NEAL OF THE NAVY" SHOWS JACKIES IN FIGHT

In "The Gun Runners," the episode of Pathé's "Neal of the Navy" serial now running at the Loew theatres throughout the city, a spectacular fight between a band of insurrectionaries and jackies from the U.S.S. Maryland takes place. Annette Hingston, her son, Lee, and one of the Santa Maria, Lower California, to take possession of the island when the steamer on which she and her party are travelling break down and they are forced to land. They stop at the home of a coffee planter. It happens that Ned Hart, his son, has been assigned to command a band of jackies protecting American interests in that part of the world, and he leads his men on the trail of the gun runners, who are commanded by Hernandez and Ponto, the adventurers who are trying to steal Annette's map of Lost Isle.

"THE AMERICANS" AT OLYMPIC THEATRE.

The Olympic Theatre will have Hugh Bernard's "Americans," the "neutral" burlesques. One of the features is "The Birth of a Nation," a burlesque on "The Birth of a Nation," affording opportunity for the antics of Ed. Johnson and Ben Small, the leading comedians. Panita, a barefoot dancer, will be a special attraction.
